It is more nearly like a fairy land than anything ever before attempted, and upon every hand is the continual expression, "Isn't it beautiful?" varied by adjectives and adverbs of more or less strength, according to the individual. A blaze of golden and silver light irradiates the entire place, transforming the lagoons into seas of gold, while the marble beauty of the buildings is emphasized in a manner impossible by day. It is, indeed, the idealizing of the real to a marvelous degree, science and art having combined to make a Paradise of earth.

CARL BOWEN JOHNSON.

TELEPHONIC JOURNALISM.

The Alleged Editor in Buda-Pest Who Spouts the News to His Subscribers

BUDA-PEST, July 1.—The capital of Hungary, where I am now spending a few days, has distinguished itself among the cities of the globe by establishing a telephonic newspaper, which has now been in existence some months, and is extending its plans and hopes. The Oriental Review of this city for April 30 gives a long account of what this novel enterprise has done and may do, which I am sure will interest my readers. The whole city of 500,000 people—as large as Boston (and, I may add, quite as handsome and better served with street railways), is divided into eight sections for the purposes of this telephonic editor, and each of the sections has one conducting wire. The apparatus in each house occupies a space of about five inches square and has two tubes, so that two members of the family can get the news at once. The whole cost of putting it in is $6, and each subscriber pays a rate of sixty cents a month for the special newspaper service.

The news collector does his work in the night, as elsewhere, and at 9 A. M. he takes his post in the central station and begins to tell his story "in a telegraphic style, summary and precise, avoiding everything superfluous." At the end of five minutes, fearing lest some of his subscribers might not have heard everything, he repeats his budget of news, word for word—mostly concerning some events and news of Hungary. At 10 o'clock he issues another oral edition, this time of foreign news. At 11 o'clock he lets us know that the Hungarian Parliament is in session, and may mention what is being debated. But word may also come of a riot, and by noon the alarmed subscriber may hear that the populace have attacked the police and have been fired upon; this, we will say, causes stocks to fall 5 per cent. Immediately the wise subscriber rushes to his own telephone and gives his broker an order to buy. At 2 o'clock the central editor rings furiously and reports a violent debate in Parliament, which leads to a change of the Ministry. At 3 o'clock there is a fire in a building of which the subscriber is part owner—and so it goes on.

"All this news," says my author, "is related in a sonorous voice, easily understood—and, as there is only one wire, the subscriber is not vexed with the hubbub of twenty voices trying to use the same wire at once. Still, it is a little fatiguing to get your news in such slices instead of having it all in your hand at once. So (I continue to quote), at 6 o'clock he can take a rest (that is, the subscriber can), and madame, his wife, comes forward to hear the report of a lecture at the Academy; perhaps the repetition, with all due emphasis, of a new poem. At 7 o'clock the young ladies listen to a concert through the Telephonic Gazette; they can distinguish wonderfully well the touching pathos of the violin, the pearly staccatos of the violin, the sweet melodies of the flute, and the enchanting voice of the prima donna. What could be more delightful and convenient?"

All this, I am assured, is daily going on in Buda-Pest. Nay, more, "by the aid of a single wire of the State telegraph line, our central station has been connected simultaneously with the telephone stations of Vienna, Graz, Brunn, and Trieste; and in all those cities the voice of the Gazette's editor has been heard—clear, sonorous and with every shade of intonation.—F. B. Sanborn in the Boston Daily Advertiser.

KNOX HAD SAND.

A Gambler Who Gave His Life to Save His Wife and Baby.

A company of ranchmen sat about the railroad station in Pomona the other afternoon waiting for the belated overland train for Los Angeles. Every man in the party knew the others, and there being an hour or two to wait, story telling of the early days on the border and in Arizona and California came natural. Stories of old times, when Indians were bad and the white pioneers knew what bravery meant, were related. John Wilson of El Monte told the most absorbing story of the hour:

"Talk about sand in a man, gentlemen! I am telling you that it takes sand of the genuine article in any man to try and stand off single-handed forty or fifty Apaches, when he knows just how the scrap will end, and that the end will be his own death. But that was just the kind of sand that was in Felix Knox when he was killed by the Apaches. You see Knox was an all-round gambler such as the tenderfoot from the East scorns so much and knows so little about, but he had a heart in him bigger than any tenderfoot's head. Well, it was in the spring of '79. Knox, with his wife and baby and a Mexican driver, was coming Bishop, Editor, published monthly, at $2 per annum, devoted to the religious and educational interests of these islands, as also a record of political and other current events. Sample copies mailed to any address. A limited number of advertisements inserted at reasonable rates.

The Hawaiian Annual now in its Nineteenth year, and acknowledged not only as the best authority on all information pertaining to the islands that residents should know and strangers invariably ask, but the only reference book of Hawaiian statistics, and annual recorder of current and recent events. There are homes probably in this land in which it is unknown, except by name, and there are numerous friends abroad to whom this publication would afford untold satisfaction for the fund of reliable information it imparts in its one hundred and fifty or more pages, with nothing of the "Guide Book" gush about it. Price per copy to any address in these islands, 75 cents; or mailed to any address in the Postal Union for 85 cents each.
